Remarks of First Lady Michelle Obama
Generation-Indigenous Convening
As Prepared for Delivery
Washington, DC

Good morning everyone, and welcome to the White House. We are so thrilled to have you here today for our Generation Indigenous convening.

I want to start by thanking Walter Isaacson and Senator Dorgan for their outstanding leadership and for the terrific work that they're doing at the Aspen Institute.

And as for T.C – there really are no words to express how proud I am of this young man and how impressed I am by his courage, determination and maturity. Barack and I were blown away by T.C. and by the other young people we met when we visited T.C.'s tribe, the Standing Rock Sioux Nation, last June. And I want to start off today by telling you a little bit about that visit.

It began when we arrived in North Dakota, and as we left the airport where we'd landed, we looked around, and all we could see was flat, empty land. There were almost no signs of typical community life, no police stations, no community or business centers, no malls, no doctor's offices, no churches, just flat, empty land.

Eventually, we pulled up to a little community with a cluster of houses, a few buildings, and a tiny school – and that was the town of Cannon Ball, North Dakota, which is part of the Standing Rock Sioux Nation. And at that school, a small group of young people gathered in a classroom, anxiously but quietly waiting to meet with the President and the First Lady. These teens were the best and brightest – hand-selected for this meeting – and after we all introduced ourselves, they shared their stories.

One young woman was in foster care because of substance abuse in her household. She talked about how hard it was to be separated from her five siblings. One young man had spent his high school years homeless, crashing on the sofa of his friends, even for a period living in the local community center. Another young man had gotten himself into college, but when he got there, he had trouble choosing the right classes; he realized that he'd never been taught how to properly write an essay; and when family problems arose back home, he struggled to balance all the stress and eventually had to drop out.

And just about every kid in that room had lost at least one friend or family member to drug or alcohol-related problems, or to preventable illnesses like heart disease, or to suicide. In fact, two of the girls went back and forth for several minutes trying to remember how many students in their freshman class had committed suicide – the number was either four or five...this is out of a class of 70.

Just sit with that for a minute: four or five kids out of a class of 70 taking their own lives. So these are the challenges these kids are facing. This is the landscape of their lives. But somehow – and this is what truly blew us away – somehow, in the face of all this hardship and all these tragedies, these kids haven't given up. They are still fighting to find a way forward, for themselves and for their community.

After losing her classmates to suicide, one young woman started volunteering at a youth program to help other kids who were struggling. One young man told us that when his family was struggling, he fended for himself for years, sleeping on friends' couches until he was old enough to become a firefighter. And that young man who had to leave college? Well, when he got back home, he discovered that his family problems were worse than he had thought. He found that his stepmother was on drugs and his four younger brothers were wandering the streets alone in the middle of the night. So at the age of 19, he stepped in and took over – and now, he's back in college while raising four children all by himself.

And then there's T.C. He was the last young person to speak that day, and after telling us his story – how he was raised by a single father, how he's lost so many people he loves, how his family struggles to get by – he then said to my husband "I know you face a lot as President of the United States, and I want to sing an encouragement song for all of us to keep going."

After everything these young people had endured, T.C. wanted to sing a song for us. So if you have any doubt about the urgency or the value of investing in this community, I want you to just think about T.C. and all those other young people I met in Standing Rock. I want you to think about both the magnitude of their struggles and the deep reservoirs of strength and resilience that they draw on every day to face those struggles.

And most of all, I want you to remember that supporting these young people isn't just a nice thing to do, and it isn't just a smart investment in their future, it is a solemn obligation that we as a nation have incurred.

You see, we need to be very clear about where the challenges in this community first started. Folks in Indian Country didn't just wake up one day with addiction problems. Poverty and violence didn't just randomly happen to this community. These issues are the result of a long history of systematic discrimination and abuse.

Let me offer just a few examples from our past, starting with how, back in 1830, we passed a law removing Native Americans from their homes and forcibly re-locating them to barren lands out west. The Trail of Tears was part of this process. Then we began separating children from their families and sending them to boarding schools designed to strip them of all traces of their culture, language and history. And then our government started issuing what were known as "Civilization Regulations" – regulations that outlawed Indian religions, ceremonies and practices – so we literally made their culture illegal.

And these are just a few examples. I could continue on like this for hours. So given this history, we shouldn't be surprised at the challenges that kids in Indian Country are facing today. And we should never forget that we played a role in this. Make no mistake about it – we own this.

And we can't just invest a million here and a million there, or come up with some five year or ten-year plan and think we're going to make a real impact. This is truly about nation-building, and it will require fresh thinking and a massive infusion of resources over generations. That's right, not just years, but generations.

But remember, we are talking about a small group of young people, so while the investment needs to be deep, this challenge is not overwhelming, especially given everything we have to work with. I mean, given what these folks have endured, the fact that their culture has survived at all is nothing short of a miracle.

And like many of you, I have witnessed the power of that culture. I saw it at the Pow Wow that my husband and I attended during our visit to Standing Rock. And with each stomping foot – with each song, each dance – I could feel the heartbeat that is still pounding away in Indian Country. And I could feel it in the energy and ambition of those young people who are so hungry for any chance to learn, any chance to broaden their horizons. Even the smallest opportunity can make such a huge difference for these kids. I saw that firsthand when Barack and I invited the kids we met in Standing Rock to come visit us at the White House.

They arrived one morning last November, and we showed them around, and took them out for pizza and burgers, and spent some time talking and laughing and hanging out. Altogether, their visit to the White House was just one day long, but as we hugged each of those kids goodbye, one young woman said to Barack, "This visit saved my life."

And given the odds these kids face, I don't think she was exaggerating. So if we take a chance on these young people, I guarantee you that we will save lives. I guarantee it. So we all need to work together to invest deeply – and for the long-term – in these young people, both those who are living in their tribal communities like T.C. and those living in urban areas across this country. These kids have so much promise – and we need to ensure that they have every tool, every opportunity they need to fulfill that promise.

So I want to thank you for your commitment to their futures and for everything you have already done for their communities. I want to thank you for coming here today to learn more about Generation Indigenous and how you can help. And I look forward to seeing the extraordinary impact that you all will have in the years ahead.

Thank you so much, and God bless.

STRATEGY AND IMPLEMENTATION PLANNING WORKSHOP

Leadership . Strategy . Project Management

May 12, 2015 . Hualapai Lodge, Peach Springs, AZ . 8:30 AM – 4:30 PM

The ActionStrategy project tool became our working strategic plan and provided us a common picture that Council members, Department Directors and Employees could access from anywhere to update and monitor progress. This is what kept us focused on what was important.

– Herold J. Hudson, Former Tribal Administrator

Please join us for this unique training that integrates leadership, team and strategy development with implementation planning. This intensive work session will help leaders and managers at all levels develop actionable, strategic plans and teams that can execute those plans. The training incorporates some of the most innovative planning methods and tools used by Tribal Leaders and Managers today.

PARTICIPANTS WILL LEARN:

- ☐ Core leadership competencies such as confronting reality, building trust and taking responsibility
- ☐ Strategic Thinking skills such as stakeholder assessment, organizational capacity assessment, and environmental analysis
- ☐ Methods to incorporate traditional values into service delivery
- ☐ How to improve team focus and collaboration
- ☐ How to develop SMART goals
- ☐ Project and Grant Management
- ☐ How to use technology to improve goal tracking and collaboration

PLANNING APPLICATION - This methodology has been successfully implemented in tribal divisions and departments such as:

- ☐ Administration and Planning
- ☐ Economic Development (Comprehensive Economic Development Strategies)
- ☐ Natural Resources (Integrated Resource Management and Environmental Planning)
- ☐ Health
- ☐ Social Services
- ☐ Cultural and Language
- ☐ Public Transportation and Safety

Center

12:00pm-1:00pm

ASQ: 3 is Ages & Stages Questionnaire (Third Edition). The ASQ: 3 screening system is composed with 21 questions designed to be completed by parents or primary caregivers. These questionnaires can identify accurately infants or young children at the age of 5 years who are in need of further assessment to determine whether they are eligible for early intervention or early childhood special education services. The items are organized into five areas: Communication, Gross Motor, Fine Motor, Problem-Solving, and Personal-Social. Each screening is given every two months with activities to help monitor every ASQ domain.

COMMUNITY MESSAGES

To: Hwal'bay Ba:j

From:

Joseph Thomas Flies-Away
Chief Justice
Hualapai Nation Court of Appeals

Jo Gamyu:je,

In the last letter I wrote, "I remember one time asking Lucy and Annie, 'did they really do that?' . . . And after a few loud rounds of Annie talking to Lucy in Hualapai, they said it is what they heard as well." A lot of what I know is because of what I asked these grandmas, my grandmas, as well as the many others who I had the joy of talking to. Some of you should know or remember how I spent time with your parents or grandparents. I remember sitting with Ben and Lydia in their 'drive-in'. One time there was the one aunt who was the mail lady in Supai, who sat with us and I learned even more. I felt very privileged sitting there with them so I would try to help out as best I could with getting drinks, napkins, and other things for the people who came in. I also learned from the ladies who came to play cards with Lucy. They also told me things or answered the many questions I had about relatives and custom. Unfortunately, Delbert's mom, Agnes, once had to tell Lucy and Annie to send me outside as she was getting tired of my questions and was trying to concentrate on her game. Annie told me in a nice way, "They want you to go outside and play now." I remember all of the elders who came to the school to teach us stuff. One day, I was particularly impressed with Renfro Cook, or who was called Slick, with how much he understood Hualapai when the old people talked. In my mind I can hear him say, "Ay", letting them know he knew exactly what they were telling us. There were many other teachers and some of you will remember the times I spent with your parents and grandparents in Peach Springs, Phoenix, Flagstaff, even Supai. I was very happy to spend that time, listen and learn from them.

I also wrote last time, "the other three . . . are equally important and actually come from our past and history." The three were the names I was using to describe law: Culture, Custom and Common Practices. I said I would write more about these in the future. Well one thing to understand right from the beginning is a lot of what we all have learned from our elders, our parents, through their stories and songs, is part of culture, custom, and common practices. There is an entire body of law that comes from who are people were in the past; how they related to one another, how they understood and respected the world and life around them. Back then there were lots of rules; meaning you just did not do this or that; everyone knew what the rules were and everyone followed them. Some of them can matter today and are absorbed in how we do things, maybe without even really seeing it as such. Others are known and are expected to be followed, but are no longer observed. Many also have been lost or have no place in modern time, at least are thought of in that way, but perhaps still are. Regardless, there is a large part of Hualapai law concealed in Hualapai ways of being. I think this area is the most interesting and certainly the most important to Hualapai Nation and its citizens. It just may take more time to make clear and relevant to everyone, even ourselves!

In this body of law, in the Hualapai way, there must be some guiding principles, a framework, from which to develop a modern dispute resolution process, something like what the Dine' call Peacemaking. We come from strong and power people so we have to believe that there is strength in our past, knowledge and meaning in our custom and tradition that can help us be a stronger nation. Our language is still alive thanks to all the people at the school, people who are still here, whose work is appreciated and valued in many Native Nations all over the Country. So we have resources to capture our custom in Court, all in order to reach Concord, or Peace. I hope we can do this together in the next year or so. We have all the resources to do so. We just need to use them. I commit myself to the task and welcome any of yours as well. Until next letter, Hankyu and Ha:nk Wayo:hiyu. j

In Remembrance of Cody Cloud Bravo*Submitted by: Leonora Burch*

I think of you in silence and often speak your name.
All I have are sweet memories and your picture in a frame.
You are in God's hands;
I have you in my heart.
When you were born
my heart was no longer my own.
It belonged to you.
To laugh, cry, play and share.
I yearn for the day when again I'll see you,
but until then life goes on.
Time can't heal all wounds.
In the air I feel your strong embrace,
I hear your laugh,
and I see your smile
in the beams of the sun.
Rest easy my son.

Love forever & always,
Mom

Brother,
We will go on with our lives
and make you proud.
You still make me laugh
cause your stories live on.
You are still here in my heart and mind,
you live through me.
I know you will always be by my side
to help me through the tough times.
I always wonder why?
But at the end of the day
I am one day closer to you.
You will always be my big brother.

Missing you...Love, Mavis, Natalie & Ryan
